Rurouni Kenshin: Reflection Rurouni Kenshin: Reflection (Rurouni Kenshin: Reflection) is a Japanese animated film based on the manga series Rurouni Kenshin. The Japanese title rusugu no ken, literally means "twisting country" and translates to "Rurouni Country". It is the second live-action film based on Rurouni Kenshin. Rurouni Kenshin: Reflection, is the beginning of the second OVA arc in the Rurouni Kenshin anime. Plot It is the beginning of Meiji era Japan. In Kyoto, a secret revolutionary movement is brewing among the samurai of Kyoto. Kenshin Himura, is among them. Several of the people in this group are making a move to do more than just change the government of Japan, they are planning to bring the entire country to a standstill by infiltrating the police force, armed with lethal swords. The first of these men was drawn into their fold by his past with a woman named Kyosuke Yumisawa, who had made the same plans, was betrayed by a fellow revolutionary, and eventually died. What the revolutionaries failed to realize at that time is that Kenshin, knowing Yumisawa's demise and hearing of her betrayal, felt he was betrayed by the same party too. And so he swore an oath to never be part of such a destructive revolution again. In Osaka, Kenshin's best friend and fellow revolutionary and fellow Kyoto samurai, Sanosuke Sagara, is training to become a police officer. His father, former Kyoto police officer and serial killer Kenshin's former mentor Hiraga Gensai, has been infiltrating the Kyoto police force secretly as a head of internal affairs and is warning the revolutionaries to stay away from the police. His motives behind this is to prevent any more of his former students from getting into trouble, and to follow in the steps of his own father, who is now being falsely accused and murdered by him of being a traitor in the police force. Kenshin and his comrades, many of whom were drawn in by Kenshin's past, began to change their plans and their ideals, believing all of the revolutionaries would lose the battle. Angered by the traitorous actions of
